Dear Megan
Out of Scope

Out of Scope

Block Offer

The simple fact is that all the coal, oil, and gas that has already been discovered cannot be burnt if globally we are to meet our Paris Agreement commitments to limit global warming to 1.5-2 degrees. We should not be looking for more.

The United Nations estimated last year that to meet climate targets, 80-90 percent of coal, 50 percent of gas, and 35 percent of oil cannot be burnt.

Realistically, currently known fossil fuel reserves may continue to be extracted and burnt for some time as the global transition to cleaner renewable energy sources takes place. But searching for more fossil fuels does not aid the transition, it delays it. Every exploration dollar could instead be spent on renewable energy. Every investment creates an asset from which its owners will expect a return.

I urge you to end the Block Offer process for allocating petroleum and minerals permits immediately. I understand that the most recent Block Offer was set in motion by the previous Government. I do not see any good reason why our new Government should begin another one.

Out of Scope

Out of Scope

I welcome an opportunity to discuss these points further with you.

Sincerely,

Hon James Shaw

Hi s 9(2)(a)

As the Prime Minister signalled last year; the annual block offer is an area we want to look at closely and Minister Woods has begun discussions with colleagues and officials about options for the annual process moving forward. We expect there will be more to say in the coming months.

Unfortunately until these discussions progress we are unable to provide much more information for your constituent, other than to say thanks for writing to us and that the particular concerns have been noted.

Feel free to give me a call if you'd like to discuss further.

Warm regards,

Subject: Constituent inquiry

Hi s 9(2)(a)

I am writing on behalf of a constituent who has concerns regarding the continuity of the Block Offers offered for tender in the Hawke's Bay region, specifically permit 53806 that covers an aquifer which is politically and environmentally sensitive.

Currently the Hawke's Bay Regional Council (HBRC) is attempting a plan change to remove oil and gas in the area within a 12 nautical mile limit off the coast, but was only granted seven. This is restricted to off-shore permits.

What my constituent would like to know is whether this Labour government would consider permanently excluding sensitive areas such as permit 53806? And would they be supportive of an initiative to exclude all oil and gas exploration/mining in the Hawke's Bay region?

It would be great to have some kind of response to give to the constituent here.

Kind regards

Hi s 9(2)(a)

The PM will need some background info on the current state of the O&G industry ahead of her chat with Winston Peters on Thursday.

A download on the situation in Taranaki, as the only producing region, would be useful – producing fields, number of jobs, direct and indirect, gdp impacts etc

Obviously production would continue for some years even if exploration was to end tomorrow, so a sense of the length of consents, size of reserves etc, would help provide a better understanding of what will be a measured transition to clean energy.

Would be good if you could pull something together by COB Wednesday.

Cheers

Thank you. Primarily the PM will need a broad overview of the sector. She won't need a lot of contextual description as she is largely across the policy settings but will need key numbers and facts. Covering the two specific areas as Mike discussed below should be a focus but a summary of what has happened in recent exploration/block offer processes there and in other areas as you suggest would also be useful.

Also, do you want any information on exploration permits and prospects in the Canterbury and Great South Basins, off the South Island? There are not producing regions, but are part of the landscape for the industry in NZ currently – or should we assume no further exploration?

Hi s 9(2)(a)

My key concern is that your paper seeks to significantly broaden the scope of the work planned for the Interim Committee which, given its limited budget and resourcing, could impact on its ability to deliver on its other key focus – agriculture. The Interim Committee is not currently set up to “consider the impact new offshore exploration would have on meeting the net-zero target by 2050”.

By the time your paper goes to Cabinet, ENZ will have agreed ToR for the Interim Committee, currently drafted as

1. When preparing necessary evidence and analysis to inform the Commission's recommendations on moving towards 100 per cent renewable electricity, the Committee must take into account:
 - the objective of minimising emissions from electricity generation
 - security of supply
 - affordability for consumers
 - ways to measure progress towards minimising emissions in the electricity sector (i.e. alternatives to measuring the proportion of renewables) while still allowing for effect of hydro inflow variability on emissions.
2. The Committee should also have regard to the following:
 - consequential impacts on opportunities to reduce emissions from the energy sector
 - links to innovation and emerging technologies
3. Its evidence and analysis should recognise the inherent and future uncertainty regarding what constitutes a normal hydrological year, and take this into account when considering complementary or alternative indicators.

The Interim Committee will consider the impact new offshore exploration would have on meeting the net-zero target by 2050, and the role of gas fired peaking and security of supply on the transition to 100 per cent renewable electricity generation.

The Interim Committee is due to hand over their findings to the Climate Change Commission, subject to the successful passing of the Zero Carbon Bill, by approximately mid-2019. The Commission would then make recommendations and provide advice to Government. Until that time no new offshore blocks will be offered via the Block Offer process.

The 11000 figure is PEPANZ number which is broader and includes petrochemical related jobs (so wider than oil and gas) technically

The updated 2016 figures are not economy wide, they were mostly centred around certain trades such as engineering. Also the report is not released publically and shared with us in confidence. The 2014 figure is from a public report.

¹¹ Taken from a 2014 study done by Martin Jenkins (<http://www.martinjenkins.co.nz/assets/Home-the-wealth-beneath-our-feet-next-steps.pdf>). Due to the oil and gas downturn since 2014 these numbers are likely to be an overestimate compared to current figures (but are the most recent available).
