

Location	Project description	Media contact
Auckland	The key outcome for the project is the development of a greater sense of community within the inner city. The project's goal is to harness this energy to empower residents and the broader community to self-identify and achieve their aspirations.	John MacDonald Methodist Mission Northern 027 484 2221 john@splice.org.nz
Colville	The Colville area of the Coromandel Peninsula faces a number of challenges, because of its rural and isolated location. One of the initiatives is the development of a community centre with medical and social service provisions. Other initiatives to be considered are: a water supply for Colville village, developing a community internet facility, a youth homework centre and senior citizen support service.	Janet Palmer Colville Social Service Collective Charitable Trust 07 866 7472 janet.palmer@clear.net.nz
New Plymouth	The Marfell community, located in New Plymouth city, has the highest proportion of Maori and Pasifika residents compared to other New Plymouth suburbs, and is over-represented in health, crime and unemployment statistics. A number of foundation projects have been initiated in the community, including a community café/kitchen, a charity shop and the Marfell Corner Project. This project will build on the growing movement of community action within the community.	Ngaropi Cameron Tu Tama Wahine o Taranaki Incorporated 06 758 5795 ngaropi@tutamawahine.org.nz
Taranaki, New Plymouth, Taranaki-King Country and Whanganui	The Trust has seven marae/pa including coastal communities which are rurally isolated and whanau members struggle to access necessary services. Initial work will be a needs analysis for each of the marae/pa, with longer term goals of addressing wellbeing, strengthening identity by creating opportunities to learn about Taranaki Reo me ona Tikanga, and employment needs.	Leanne Horo Taranaki Iwi Trust 06 763 8242 leannehoro@hotmail.com
Raureka, Hastings Tukituki	Raureka School, in partnership with the Raureka community, plans to establish a community hub at the school. It is proposed that the hub will provide health and social services, undertake activities and promote local events that support community development and the overall wellbeing of the Raureka community.	Glen Varcoe Raureka School Board of Trustees 06 878 9766 varcs@hotmail.com
Masterton	Masterton East is an area of high deprivation with 59% of people unemployed or not in the workforce. The project will identify and support community leaders, improve education and social outcomes, and work with landlords to improve housing stock.	Sandy Ryan Connecting Communities Wairarapa Incorporated 06 378 8900 manager@connectingcommunities.org.nz

Nelson	The Nelson/Tasman Pasifika community consists of approximately 2,500 people from Samoa, Tonga, Fiji, Niue, Cook Islands, Tokelau, Tuvalu, Vanuatu, Hawaii and the Solomon Islands. There are continuing gaps for the Pasifika community in health, education, employment, housing and social services. The first year of the project will identify what the community needs and plan to move forward.	Cornelia Baumgartner Kidpower Teenpower Fullpower Trust 03 543 2669 cornelia@kidpower.org.nz nz
Tahunanui, Nelson Nelson	Tahunanui is a diverse suburb of 5,300 people, and home to Nelson's wealthiest and poorest communities. The Community Centre has recently gained access to a new facility and this project will support the community engagement and development of this facility as a community hub. New processes and mechanisms for Tahunanui to connect, communicate and collaborate will be supported and locally-led action plans developed.	Judy Robinson Tahunanui Community Centre Incorporated 03 548 6036 managertcc@yahoo.com
Westport	The community development project will aim to retain and strengthen social capital and build resilience. Initially the community development worker will focus on forging and maintaining links between the commercial, government and not for profit sectors to draw on combined strengths.	Deirdre McGrath Buller Rural Education Activities Programme (REAP) Incorporated 03 789 7659 deidmcg@gmail.com
Upper Clutha Waitaki and Te Tai Tonga	The Upper Clutha is an isolated, rural area with one of the fastest growing populations in the country. This provides the community with many opportunities and also some challenges. Growth stretches resources, for example school rolls have doubled and schools are having to build two new classrooms. Community development will see engagement across all community segments: business, education, health care, grassroots community groups, social service and local government.	Kate Murray Alpine Community Development Trust 03 443 7799 kate@communitynetworks.co.nz
Teviot Valley, Central Otago	The Teviot Valley, located in the Central Otago District, is home to a small, predominantly rural, community of just under 1,600 residents. The area hosts a number of seasonal workers, mainly from Vanuatu, and during the fruit picking season Roxburgh's population almost doubles. The community would like to ensure these visitors are welcomed, catered for and have the opportunity to integrate into the community during their time there.	Paula Penno Central Otago District Council 03 440 0056 paula.penno@codc.govt.nz nz

South Invercargill	South Invercargill is an area of high deprivation and social need. In 2012, South Alive was formed as a community organisation to support the rejuvenation of the area. The community development project will connect specific sectors of the community such as young people, the elderly, migrants and the business community.	Pamela Gare Invercargill City Council 03 2111 777 pamela.gare@icc.govt.nz
